ELLEN DEGENERES is so determined to have Hollywood good looks when she hosts the next Academy Awards, she could fork out as much as $50,000 for plastic surgery, say sources.

The 55-year-old talk-show host, who prides herself on her youthful appearance, has been busy consulting with experts on the best procedures to erase years but leave her looking as if she's had "nothing done" when she headlines the March 2 broadcast, according to an insider.

The comedian first hosted the Academy Awards back in 2007

THAT COULD COST THE COMIC a bundle.

"Ellen could easily spend as much as $50,000 if she were to undergo a full facial makeover," Dr. Vladimir Grigoryants, a top Los Angeles plastic surgeon, told The ENQUIRER.

The physician, who's not treated the star, says she's beginning to show "inevitable signs of aging with loose skin and deep creases on her face and neck."

HE SAID ELLEN could well afford a face-lift plus other pricey procedures that cost as much as fifty grand, and work wonders.

A good face-lift "would help remove the creases in her face, lines around her eyes and forehead, as well as tighten the jowls and the area below her chin," said the expert.

JEN'S DOG HEADED TO HOLLYWOOD

LASSIE, beware! Dog-lover Jennifer Aniston is on a mission to turn her beloved white shepherd mix into a movie star!

The 44-year-old actress adopted her precious pooch Dolly as a pup in 2006, and sources say she's confident the tail-wagger has Oscar-caliber chops.

"Jen taught Dolly to sit, shake and roll over in a few hours, so she's convinced Dolly has the talent – she just needs the right training," an insider told The ENQUIRER.

"SHE EVEN TRIED TO GET Dolly cast in her current movie, 'Squirrels to the Nuts.'"

Jen and the film's director, Peter Bogdanovich, are close friends, "but Jen's so serious about making Dolly a star that she decided to not call in a favor," added the source.

"Instead, she got her agent to formally pitch the idea to Peter."

Dolly didn't get the part, but Jen – who worked with dogs in the 2008 tearjerker "Marley & Me" – is still sniffing around for the perfect role, said the source.

"Jen's been grilling the dog trainers on the set for tips on finding the best possible training to get Dolly camera-ready," added the source.

Jen and fiance Justin Theroux recently adopted a pit bull puppy named Sophie in a bid to replace Jen's beloved mutt Norman, who died in 2011 at the ripe old age of 15.

"Dolly and Sophie get along brilliantly, but Jen loves Dolly like a daughter," added the source.

"Her dream is to do a 'Marley & Me' sequel with Dolly in the lead!"

ity, the surgery could cost Ellen as much as $25,000 and require a three-week recovery.

"IF ELLEN WOULD LIKE TO minimize the vertical creases between her eyebrows, erase frown lines or reposition her eyebrows to make her appear more youthful, then I would recommend a brow-lift, which has a three-week recovery period and can cost as much as $5,000. If Ellen wanted to go all out, she could fix the droopy areas around her eyes. The cost to do both upper and lower eyelids could be as high as $5,000 and recovery time is about two weeks."

Finally, Ellen might want to put the finishing touches on her face-over with a nose job that lifts, narrows and shortens her schnozz, a $12,000 procedure.

We'll all know Oscar night – or if the surgery's that good, maybe we won't!

Riley Keough rekindled her romance with Alex Pettyfer

LISA MARIE NIXES RILEY'S ROMANCE

LISA MARIE PRESLEY is pleading with daughter Riley to pull the plug on her rekindled romance with ex-fiance Alex Pettyfer, a source says.

"Lisa Marie is furious!" said a source close to the family. "She worked hard to convince Riley that Alex was not a good match for her, and Lisa Marie finally got her way when they broke up last year."

RILEY, 24, MET THE BRITISH ACTOR WHEN THEY CO-STARRED in the male stripper movie "Magic Mike," and they got engaged in March 2012 after a six-month romance.

But as The ENQUIRER reported, Lisa Marie advised Riley not to marry the actor, who has a rep for being vulgar and bad tempered. She also feared Pettyfer, 23, just wanted a chunk of the estimated $300 million Presley family fortune. Riley dumped Alex after he reportedly cheated on her with a sexy lingerie model, and her four-times-wed mother tried to fix her up with more appropriate matches, including "Twilight" hunk Robert Pattinson, said the source.

"Riley just wasn't happy playing the field," added the source. "She stayed in touch with Alex, but she did her best to keep it from her mom."

The two were spotted holding hands on Aug. 12 at the Los Angeles premiere of his latest film, "Lee Daniels' The Butler," and Lisa Marie is not happy, said the source.

"There's something about Alex that she doesn't quite trust," said the source. "She's going to do everything she can to steer Riley away from him!"

MIRANDA LAMBERT has ordered boozing hubby Blake Shelton into rehab!

The country superstars' marriage has barely passed the two-year mark, and sources say Miranda fears for the marriage unless the "Voice" coach sobers up.

"Blake wants to be the life of everyone's party, but it's taking a toll on him," a pal told The ENQUIRER.

"Miranda is not only afraid for Blake's health, she's just as scared that when he's hitting the sauce someday he'll stray, or have an accident.

MILA KUNIS has issued an ultimatum to heartthrob honey Ashton Kutcher – ditch Demi or forget about being a daddy!

Gorgeous Mila, 30, is ready to take the next step in her romance with her former "That '70s Show" co-star. But she's getting tired and fed up waiting for Ashton to finalize his divorce from estranged wife Demi Moore.

"Ashton keeps telling her that Demi is the problem," a friend said. "However, Mila suspects it's just an excuse to keep the big questions about their relationship and where it's heading at bay, like getting married and starting a family.

"Ashton talks all the time about how he dreams of having a child with Mila, so she told him to forget about having a kid until Demi's a memory."

Miranda is also on tour, and sources say the 29-year-old Grammy winner is becoming increasingly alarmed about her husband’s boozing.

“Blake sloughs Miranda off, saying, ‘It’s just show business, and I’m drinking because I miss you, honey,’” revealed the source.

But Miranda is convinced Blake needs professional help to quit boozing, said the friend, and she’s reminded him that country star Tim McGraw gave up booze for his kids and wife Faith Hill.

“Miranda has pointed out to Blake that Tim’s fans didn’t abandon him or think he was a wimp when he got sober,” said the friend. “At this point, Miranda realizes a trip to rehab is a must for Blake, and she’s trying to get his head right with it. If anything, I think Blake fears how going to rehab would look to his fans. He says 12-step programs are for sissies.

“Miranda is at the asking stage right now. But there will come a time when it turns into an ultimatum. She’s afraid Blake is killing himself – and their marriage – with his boozing.”

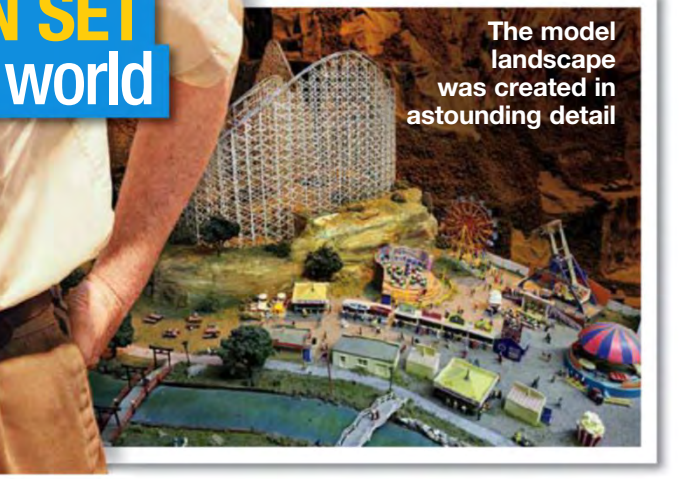
BIGGEST LITTLE TRAIN SET in the world



The model landscape was created in astounding detail

AS soon as you set foot on the Northlandz property, it's clear you've entered a wonderland like nowhere else.

Certified by "Guinness World Records" as the "world's largest miniature railway," Northlandz is a train-lovers' paradise that's been described by visitors as "incredible," "mind-blowing" and "one of the wonders of the world."

Rockers Rod Stewart and Neil Young, actors Joe Piscopo and Pee-wee Herman, several state governors and 100,000 folks a year from all over the world have made the trek to the Flemington, N.J., attraction to revel in the sheer magnitude of the display.

Northlandz boasts an amazing eight miles of track, hundreds of bridges spanning awesome gorges, more than 4,000 buildings and a half-million tiny trees. Housed in a huge warehouse, the substructure required enough lumber to build 42 large houses. Hundreds of tons of plaster went into the building of its three-and-a-half story mountains.

BUT IT'S THE DETAILS THAT ARE MIND-BOGGLING. The railroad features room after room containing displays that run nearly floor to ceiling. Everywhere you turn there are beautiful tiny scenes of life in small towns, on farms, in the city, and of course, along the railroad.

Owner Bruce Zaccagnino worked 19-hour days for four-and-a-half years, seven days a week to build his dream – what he calls "my gift to the world."

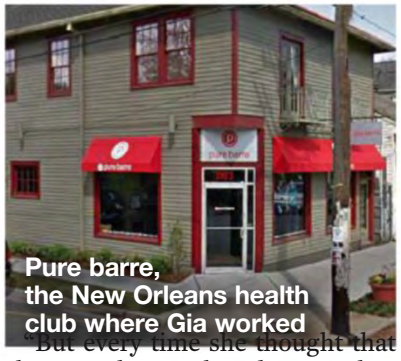
BROKEN romances and shattered dreams pushed "The Bachelor" beauty Gia Allemand over the edge, says her devastated best friend.

"All Gia ever wanted was to be loved, to have a husband and children," Melinda Farina, a New York-based beauty expert, told The ENQUIRER.



Pure barre, the New Orleans health club where Gia worked

"But every time she thought that she was close to her dreams, they eluded her."

According to Farina, 29-year-old Gia was in the midst of a breakup with NBA player Ryan Anderson, who found her dangling from a noose in her New Orleans, La., apartment on Aug. 12.

Anderson sat by her bedside until life support was turned off two days later.

"Gia gave up everything to move to New Orleans with Ryan," said Farina. "She suggested marriage to him, but he wasn't ready yet. That shattered her. She had no vision of her future."

Gia, who earlier appeared on "Bachelor Pad," had also suffered a bitter split from former New York Yankees pitcher Carl Pavano. Afterward, she said: "Carl and I are enemies. I hate him!"

After a painful breakup with Ottawa Senators hockey player Chris Campoli, Gia was distraught over her romantic life, Farina said.

Adding to her heartbreak, "The Bachelor" Jake Pavelka chose Vienna Girardi over Gia in 2010.

"Gia thought 'The Bachelor' would be her ticket to fame," said a source. "But it wasn't. Afterward, she put all her effort into getting married, instead of developing a career.

"SHE ENDED UP teaching exercise classes at pure barre, a small suburb of New Orleans. That was a long way down from her big dreams, and it crushed her."

Her friend Farina said: "The last time that I saw Gia, there was an overwhelming sadness in her eyes. I believe she just gave up in the end."

Days after Gia's death, Hollywood was stunned by yet another suicide. Lee Thompson Young, who starred on Disney Channel's "The Famous Jett Jackson" from 1998 to 2001, was found dead of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound in his L.A. apartment on Aug. 19.

Young, 29, had co-starred as Detective Barry Frost on TNT's "Rizzoli & Isles" since 2010. He'd also appeared on TV's "Smallville," "Scrubs" and "CSI: NY," and starred in the 2004 film "Friday Night Lights."

In an ironic twist, Young played FBI agent Al Gough in ABC's "FlashForward" for eight episodes – until his character committed suicide to prevent the death of an innocent civilian! by JOHN BLOSSER

Sitcom star's HUBBY TELLS ALL

AFTER 22 trips to rehab, a congenital heart defect ultimately claimed the life of booze-troubled "That '70s Show" star Lisa Robin Kelly.

That's the claim of the 43-year-old actress' estranged husband, who says Kelly built up a tremendous tolerance to alcohol before going into cardiac arrest and dying in her sleep at a Los Angeles area treatment facility on Aug. 14.

"You can't do to the human body what Lisa did, for the length of time that she did, and expect to survive," Robert Gilliam, 61, told The ENQUIRER.

"Not with a congenital heart defect, which Lisa had.

"Her poor little body just couldn't take all that abuse anymore."

Kelly played Laurie Forman – older sister of actor Topher Grace's character – from 1998 until 2003.

The coroner's office is awaiting toxicology results before releasing her cause of death. But in the past three years, Kelly had been on a dramatic downward spiral with at least four arrests for DUI, spousal abuse and assault.

Despite that, "Lisa was an honest, caring, loving person," said Gilliam, choking back tears.

He claims the couple met through mutual friends in 2010 after her first drunk driving arrest.

"LISA CALLED ME IN MAY 2011 AND asked me if I would detox her," said Gilliam, who ran a rehab facility at the time.

"She was drinking more than a half-gallon of vodka a day. I got her off everything in six weeks."

They tied the knot Oct. 22, 2012, but Lisa fell off the wagon about a week later, he said.

"Lisa drank for three days straight," he recalled. "She ended up in a hospital emergency room in North Carolina with a blood alcohol level of .387.

On Nov. 26, cops in Mooresville, N.C., arrested both Kelly and Gilliam after responding to a disturbance at their home.

Gilliam was charged with misdemeanor assault on a female, and Kelly was charged with misdemeanor assault. They were later released on $500 bond apiece.

The couple moved to California, but their relationship exploded in May when Gilliam allegedly attacked Kelly after she refused to fork over her bank account.

He was convicted of domestic battery and served 35 days in jail.

Despite their troubles, Gilliam believes Kelly might still be alive if she could have received more help.

Kim K hysterics finally trigger truce: Yeezus & Mom-ager end their ugly war!

Kontrolling KRIS JENNER's suddenly made peace with hothead homie KANYE WEST after distraught daughter KIM KARDASHIAN suffered an emotional breakdown, screaming at Mom-ager and Baby-Daddy that their ongoing tug-of-war battles are killing her! Said a family insider: "Kim was in constant tears because both controlling Kris and domineering Kanye kept demanding things be done their way! Kanye insisted Kim should lay back, relax, and enjoy beautiful moments with their little NORI. But Kris had people in the house constantly, bringing them in to see the baby. Worse, she kept bombarding Kim with new projects, story ideas for their show, photo shoots, etc. Then it all came to a head when Kanye erupted, forbidding Kris from talking shop to her daughter – and that's when Kim finally broke down in tears, begging them to stop. Her obvious pain finally made Kris and Kanye come to their senses. Realizing their bad blood was making Kim a wreck, they sat down and made amends, vowing to get along with each other for her sake!" Stay tuned.

Speaking of KRIS JENNER, she's a hot, sweaty mess after hearing the same news I've been hearing – that Fox execs are on the fence about renewing her ho-hum, so-so rated TV talker after scathing shots like this from "New York Post" TV critic LINDA STASI, who hissed: "A horrible new talk show by the mother of all self-promoters!...Some people just need to shut up and she's one of them." YEOW! And most critics dished dismal one-star ratings. Reports a K family insider: "Kris is almost tearing her hair out, she's so crazed after hearing Fox execs are teetering on the brink. She still doesn't know if it's getting the ax or an order for a second season. It's sheer torture for her. She's smoking more than ever, and can't get a good night's sleep. Now she's made a personal plea to Fox bosses, saying they can cut her salary in half if they'll keep it on the air. So far, she hasn't heard a peep back!" Stay tuned.

WOULDA, COULDA, SHOULDA DEPT.: Two weeks ago I wrote bravely: "Watch closely as Mad Mike steps out onto the high wire with a daring prediction that could make me a legend of journalism...or a journalist jerk!" Okay, so JENNIFER ANISTON did NOT marry JUSTIN THEROUX on Aug. 10, but...as your CIA/NSA of sizzle-licious gossip, I often make educated guesses after monitoring background "chatter" from sources close to the stars, then take action – like PRESIDENT OBAMA did when scary terrorist chatter caused him to close down our Middle East embassies. Happily, that prediction of danger didn't come true – but unhappily, neither did my Aniston wedding prediction, dammit. Remember, though, that I also said: "I KNOW something heavy's going down at Jen's estate" on Aug. 10, and I added, "maybe it's just a housewarming party" for her newly renovated Bel-Air home...and "Justin's birthday is Aug. 10, so maybe it's a birthday party!" BINGO! Hey, two out of three ain't bad, people...so maybe now you'll appreciate the risks that I, Mike Danger, take for you in the scary, shadowy world of Hollywood gossip! (You're welcome.)

And you know someone's going to make a movie about her troubles, so you should jump on that before somebody beats you to it." Gasped Jen: "Really? You think I look like... Paula Deen!" Nodding brightly, Fan Gal chirped: "Well, of course you're younger, so they'll use makeup to age you. But there's definitely a resemblance. I believe you could pull it off!" Said My SpyWitness: "Jen, looking a tad tightly-wound, told the lady she'd get right on it – and split."

Revealed a family insider: "Eric put up with Jessica's boasting for years, always staying mum about it. But when she started rambling on and on to friends at a dinner party about how she can't believe she's made herself such a fortune – then topped that with her 'world's wealthiest' boast, Eric snapped. Later that same evening, he told her how embarrassed he was by her endless bragging. Jessica was totally shocked, told Eric she wasn't even aware she'd been doing it – and got very upset at first. But later, Jess actually thanked her man, and promised never to embarrass him again with public boasts about her rich-gal status."

■ KEVIN COSTNER's cranky lately because a judge tossed his lawsuit claiming he's still owed money from his 1991 "Robin Hood" – but even before that setback, the star was driving co-workers on new flick "Draft Day" CRAZY with nasty temper tantrums! Said an on-set source: "Kevin kept blowing his stack at cameramen, boom hangers and crew people who moved while he was delivering his lines. You couldn't move an inch while he was on camera or he'd get distracted and blow up! If he heard the click of a camera, or saw the microphone swaying above him, he'd abruptly stop the shoot, yell at the person – then demand a retake!" During a break, Costner was overheard asking co-star SAM ELLIOTT: "Doesn't it drive you crazy when people are moving – and the mic's dangling right over your head?" Rejoined unsympathetic Elliott: "No, not at all. It comes with the job." Getting the message, diva Kevin dropped the subject pronto.

Khloe Kardashian cheating nightmare

Lamar: 50 WOMEN – IN FOUR YEARS!

Khloe hired private investigators to keep tabs on Lamar, divulged an insider

She fears he's been straying SINCE THEY GOT MARRIED

HOT on the heels of two women revealing they had steamy affairs with Khloe Kardashian's husband, the devastated reality star has been hit by a new bombshell.

The ENQUIRER has learned that Khloe believes basketball player Lamar Odom may have cheated on her with up to 50 women in the past four years. And she suspects her skirt-chasing hubby has been unfaithful every time he hit the road since their September 2009 marriage, say sources.

"Khloe's head is spinning trying to calculate just how many times Lamar cheated on her," said a family insider.

"She fears that every time Lamar was out of her sight, he may have turned to other women for companionship."

Even worse, Lamar has allegedly boasted about his conquests.

"Lamar bragged to pals that he was even more virile than his idol – serial cheater Tiger Woods," said a source.

A DISTRAUGHT KHLOE KNOWS ALL about Lamar's wicked ways because she employed private investigators to keep tabs on him, divulged the insider.

"They've turned over hundreds of pages of descriptions of Lamar flirting with random model-types in bars, getting services from strippers and leaving bars and restaurants with drop-dead gorgeous women.

"By Khloe's estimation, Lamar may have hooked up with at least one woman every week he was traveling – some 50 women."

Jennifer Richardson (left) claims she had a year-long affair with Odom. Polina Polonsky (right) allegedly had a six-week romance with Lamar

As The ENQUIRER previously revealed, Khloe, 29, is said to be on the verge of a breakdown, crying hysterically as her marriage crumbles.

Recently the shaky marriage has been battered by two cheating scandals in four months, involving women who claimed affairs with the 33-year-old NBA player.

Lamar reportedly met Jennifer Richardson, 29, in January 2012, at Stadium Club in Washington, D.C., and carried on an affair with her until March 2013.

On June 2, the day Khloe's sister Kim held her baby shower, Lamar allegedly began a six-week romance with 27-year-old Los Angeles-based attorney Polina Polonsky.

Both Polina and Jennifer claim Khloe knew about their relationships with her husband.

But despite Lamar's repeated infidelities, said the insider: "Khloe has refused to kick him to the curb because she is damaged and needy."

Sadly, Khloe should have seen the heartbreak coming. In the weeks prior to her wedding, Lamar was seeing at least three different women.

The morning of their wedding, he flirted with a blonde at the SLS Hotel in Beverly Hills. And just days after he wed Khloe, a report surfaced that Lamar had been cheating on ex-girlfriend Lara Manoukian during their seven-year relationship.

"Lamar's cheating is out of control," said the insider. "The multiple affairs and countless women have been a horrible humiliation for Khloe and her whole family."

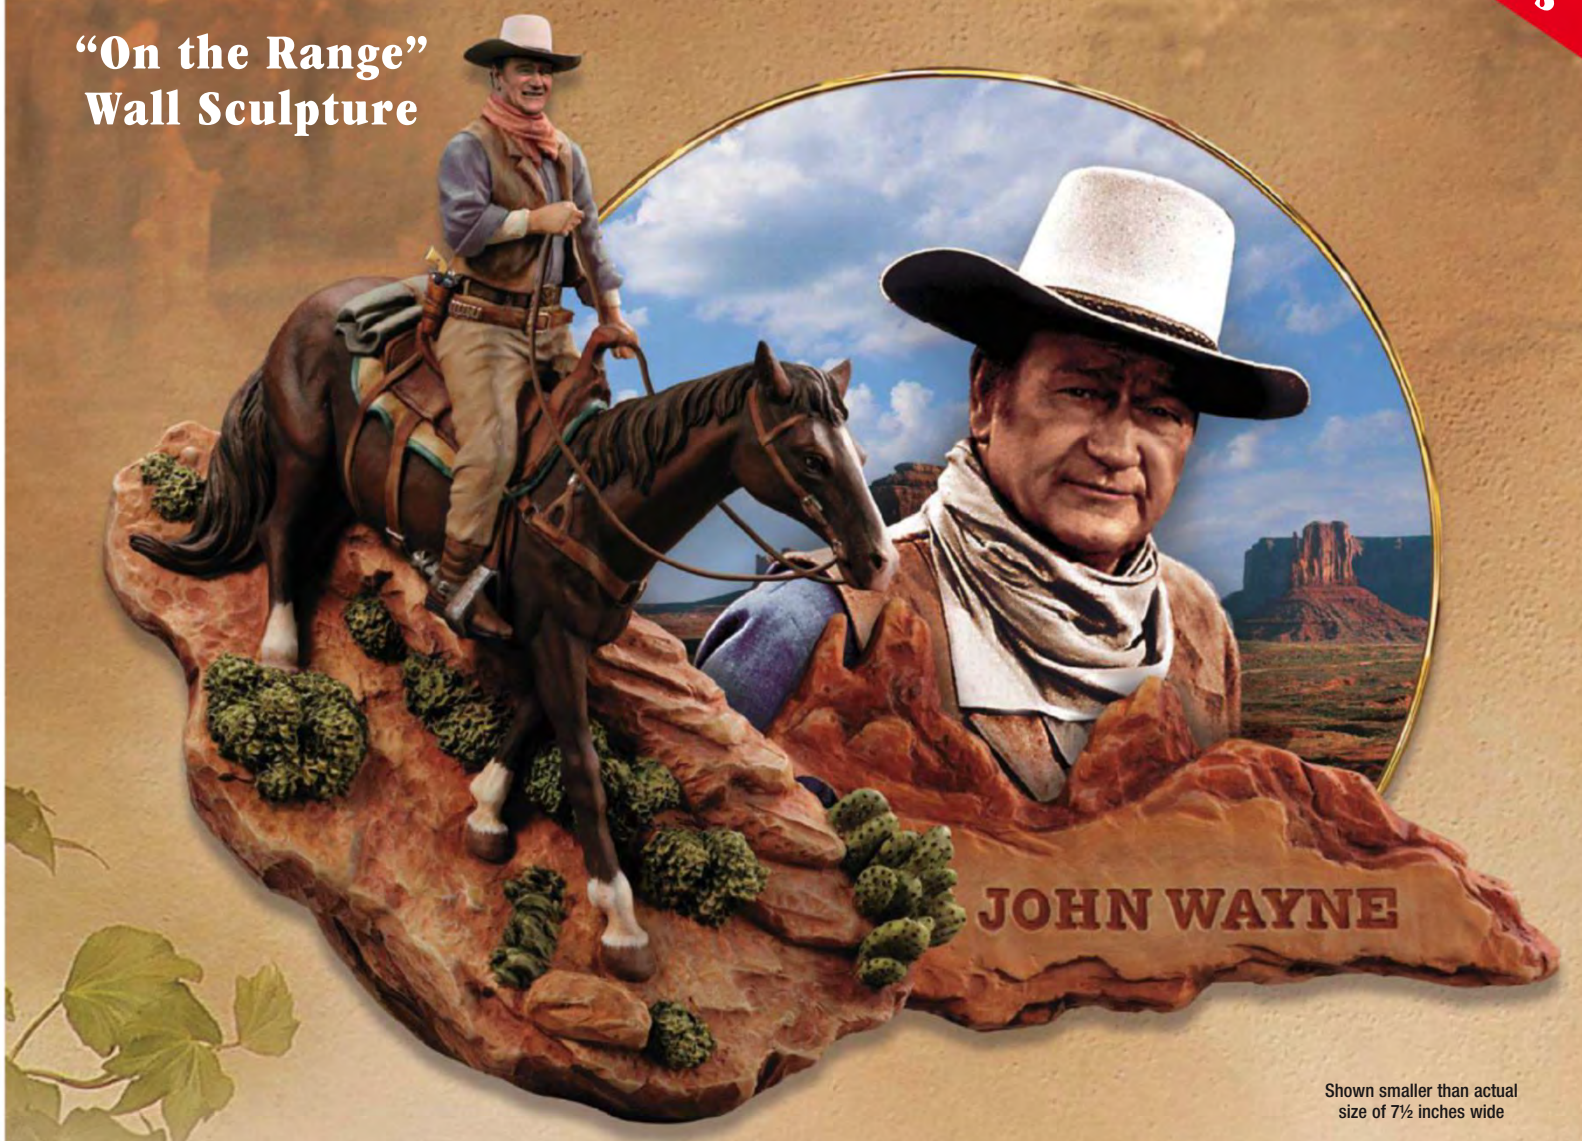
"On the Range" Wall Sculpture



Shown smaller than actual size of 7½ inches wide

No one embodied straight-shooting, rugged individualism like American icon, John Wayne. Capturing the untamed spirit of the West in his decades-long film career, he spoke to what is heroic in us all. Now The Bradford Exchange salutes this timeless star in "On the Range," a fully-authorized tribute to Duke's Western film legacy.

This wall sculpture features a hand-cast and hand-painted figure of Duke riding tall in the saddle, while a handsome photographic portrait provides an arresting backdrop. Duke's name appears in rustic lettering as if carved into the rock for all time.

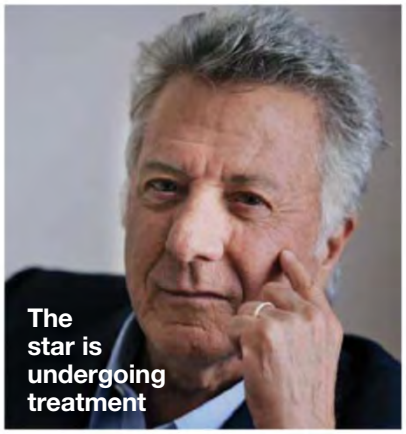
Dustin FACING UPHILL BATTLE



The star is undergoing treatment

DUSTIN HOFFMAN's reps announced that the "Tootsie" star's been "surgically cured" of cancer, but experts tell The ENQUIRER the beloved actor is still facing an uphill battle.

The mouthpieces for the legendary actor, 76, didn't reveal the type of cancer, but a news exclusive on Aug. 8 reported that the disease had attacked Dustin's throat. A rep for Hoffman subsequently denied that Hoffman has throat cancer.

The actor's team said the two-time Oscar winner is undergoing "preventative treatment" so the disease doesn't return – and that set off alarm bells for our experts.

"YOU CAN'T SAY IT WAS CURED IF HE is receiving additional treatment," said noted New York head and neck oncologist Dr. Marshall Strome, who has not treated Hoffman.

And West Palm Beach, Fla., radiation oncologist Dr. Jerome Spunberg, who also has not treated Hoffman, says head and neck cancers can be "deadly" without treatment and easily spread.

Dustin's being brave, and a Hollywood source said one of the first people he turned to after his diagnosis for comfort and advice is longtime friend and "Meet the Fockers" co-star Barbra Streisand.

"Barbra's like family," the source added. "She's been there for him in a big way."

Sources say no one is more concerned than Harrison's wife, Calista Flockhart. At left, their son, Liam

WHAT's happened to "Indiana Jones"?

Beloved 71-year-old actor Harrison Ford was recently spotted outside the medical office of a skin cancer specialist, and shocking photos show the Hollywood legend with an ugly-looking crimson red rash on his face and throat.

It was just last November that The ENQUIRER reported a "cancer scare" for the "Star Wars" hero when top medical experts examining a photo showing an ugly growth on the actor's nose said he could very well have a malignant skin tumor.

The blemish, according to doctors, was possibly a basal cell carcinoma and not life-threaten-ing.

BUT NOW, THERE are new fears that he's ailing as Ford – praised for portraying Branch Rickey in the Jackie Robinson baseball biopic "42" – hits the TV talk circuit in a frenzy.

He's promoting his latest film "Paranoia," in a role he shaved his head for – and upcoming flicks "The Expendables 3" and "Star Wars: Episode VII," reprising his career-boosting Han Solo role.

"Everyone's concerned for Harrison Ford," said a friend.

"At his age, when he's seen going into a doctor's office and pictures show him not looking right, you begin thinking the worst.

"He wore professionally applied makeup for his TV appearances, but in recent makeup-free pictures, he doesn't look right."

Adding to the drama, The ENQUIRER uncovered a photo of Ford taken July 31 outside the Rodeo Drive of-fice of a top dermatologist in Beverly Hills, Calif.

We are withholding the doctor's name, but the physician specializes in treating "all forms of skin cancer."

In other photos obtained in mid-August after Ford was interviewed on "Good Morning America" and "Live!" in New York City, the actor's forehead, nose, cheeks, chin and neck are covered with nasty red splotches.

> "Everyone wants to see Harrison Ford healthy"

The superstar was spotted leaving a top dermatologist's office in Beverly Hills

July 31, 2013

Harrison's reps assured The ENQUIRER that Ford does not have any form of cancer and is not receiving cancer treatment of any kind. The reps did confirm Ford is under a dermatologist's care due to frequent sun exposure.

Experts who analyzed the photos at The ENQUIRER's request agree that Ford could be battling serious medical issues.

The redness on his skin could have been caused by "topical medications such as Efudex, which are used to treat early skin cancers or precancerous lesions," said Dr. Jerome Spunberg, a radiation oncologist from West Palm Beach, Fla., who has not treated Ford.

Dr. Jerome Litt – a Cleveland, Ohio, dermatologist and author of "Your Skin from A to Z," who has not treated Ford – agreed, adding that the redness could also be the result of "special creams like Fluoroplex or Efudex that are applied to treat actinic keratosis, which is a precancerous condition."

MEANWHILE, SOURCES say no one is more concerned about Harrison's health than his wife, former "Ally McBeal" star Calista Flockhart, who played Kitty, a character with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma on TV's "Brothers & Sisters" in 2010.

At the time, she said: "I've done a lot of research. I've talked to a lot of people. It's a lot to deal with – confronted with the possibility that you could lose your mother.

"The word cancer is a terrifying word that nobody ever wants to hear."

The source added: "Everyone wants to see Harrison Ford healthy. When there are pictures of him not looking right, it's reason for concern."

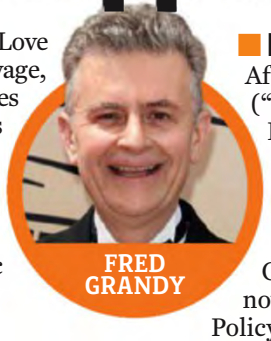
Whatever happened to SHOW'S STARS?

MORE than 35 years ago, "The Love Boat" set sail on its maiden voyage, delighting TV audiences with tales of lovesick passengers and high-seas hijinks. The show proved to be a huge hit – and even sparked a multidecade boom in the cruise industry. Come aboard now with The ENQUIRER as we look into what happened to the once-majestic Pacific Princess' unforgettable crew.



FRED GRANDY

JILL WHELAN

Adorable blonde Jill joined the cast in the third season of "The Love Boat" as Vicki Stubing, the captain's precocious daughter. After "The Love Boat" finally made its last voyage, Jill, now 46, performed in several off-Broadway shows and she later made a return to the small screen for a stint on the soap opera "The Young and The Restless." She now co-hosts a podcast with famed radio host Brian Phelps called "The Brian & Jill Show."

JILL WHELAN

FRED GRANDY

After leaving "The Love Boat," Fred ("Gopher") – a Harvard grad and a Republican – went to Washington, serving four terms in Congress, representing his home district in Iowa. He then went on to a more charitable profession as CEO of Goodwill Industries. In 2011, Fred, now 65, joined the Center for Security Policy, a D.C. think tank that focuses on national security issues. But despite his impressive resume, he still has the acting bug in him. This spring, he starred in the Tony Award-winning thriller "Sleuth" at the Surflight Theatre in Beach Haven, N.J.

GAVIN MACLEOD

Gavin (Capt. Merrill Stubing), 82, has been the spokesperson for Princess Cruises since 1986 and is currently focusing on the release of his upcoming book, "This Is Your Captain Speaking: My Fantastic Journey Through Hollywood, Faith & Life," which is scheduled for an Oct. 22 release. He also appears occasionally at the McCallum Theatre near his home in Rancho Mirage, Calif., where he lives with his wife of nearly four decades, Patti.

WORKERS DIE dismantling TV ship

"THE LOVE BOAT" was once a magical place where troubles melted away and true love always won the day, but the real-life ending for the cruise ship Pacific Princess was marked by tragedy.

Two workers at a scrap yard in Turkey, where the famed ship was set to be dismantled for metal and parts, were killed on Aug. 10 by toxic gas in the 42-year-old vessel's engine room.

The ship, which sailed into living rooms across America every Saturday night between 1977 and 1987 on ABC's hit sitcom, had been languishing at an Italian shipyard for several years before it was sold for scrap.

But during its voyage from Genoa to Izmir, Turkey, it began taking on water in rough seas. The two men perished while trying to bilge the floodwaters from below deck.

It was a sad ending for the legendary vessel, which became one of the most recognizable ships in modern history – and a TV star.

Doc's there for their baseball games, tennis matches and loves simply watching them carouse with their friends and the family pets in the backyard pool. He also continues to act, most recently portraying "Judge Kornzucker" on the Netflix revamp of "Arrested Development." He's been married for 16 years to Catrina Honadle.

Gordon Ramsay $118M DIVORCE SECRET

Hell-raising chef scared wife will cook his goose – INSIDER

The TV star treats his wife with kid gloves, says a source

GORDON RAMSAY will NEVER divorce his wife of 16 years. The terror of the kitchen is terrified she'll take him to the cleaners.

And the foul-mouthed celebrity chef has a LOT to lose!

The industry magazine "Adweek" recently revealed that Ramsay has a lot of eggs in his basket.

His shows – including "Hell's Kitchen," "Kitchen Nightmares," "MasterChef" and "Hotel Hell" – brought in $185 million in ad sales for FOX TV in the last year. In 2012, "Forbes" put Ramsay's yearly take at $38 million, and he's reportedly worth $118 million.

Gordon has four kids with wife Tana

GORDON, 46, AND TANA, 39, married in 1996 and have four kids together. There have been reports of trouble in their marriage and if they divorce, Tana could walk away with half her husband's staggering fortune. That's why Gordon "may curse a blue streak around other people but is a pussycat around her," said a pal.

> "She's the only person I know who puts the fear of God in him"

"She's the only person I know who puts the fear of God in him, because she could hurt him badly – in the pocketbook!"

Beautiful Tana has stood lovingly by her hubby, even when sexy Sarah Symonds said she had a frying-pan hot affair with Ramsay, and there are even rumors of a raunchy sex video with him. Ramsay denied the affair.

"Tana's been through a lot with Gordon and never wavered," the source continued. "Also, Gordon's fame has rubbed off on her. Tana's appeared on several British TV shows and has written six books about food."

Tana has written six books about food

But the chef's wife knows she'd get a lot more if he gives her a reason to leave.

"Gordon feels divorce is out of the question," added the source.

SEXY Sandra Bullock has been dropping jaws in Hollywood with a fantastic makeover.

At the recent Teen Choice Awards, Sandra, who's pushing 50, wore a head-turning sequined mini-dress by Antonio Berardi and strappy Casadei heels.

The Hottie-wood beauty's new vamped-up image comes after a shakeup of her style team.

And Hollywood gossips are wondering if her sexy new look is aimed at putting the romance back in her life and maybe even helping her hook a hubby.

The actress has seemingly largely been off the dating scene since her world came crashing down in 2010. That's when her husband of four years, Jesse James, was caught cheating with tattooed model Michelle "Bombshell" McGee.

Sandra was inspired by Halle Berry and Jennifer Aniston

BUT NOW, A FRIEND SAYS the emotional wounds have healed and Sandra's looking stylish and sexy.

"She sees Halle Berry, Jennifer Aniston and others looking almost half their age and she wants to amp things up, big-time," revealed a close source.

"She wants to feel sexy and confident."

Sandra is a devoted mom to adopted son Louis

To help her reach her goals, the Oscar winner recently hired high-powered Elizabeth Stewart, who has fast become the most sought-after stylist in Hollywood, counting Jennifer Lawrence, Cate Blanchett, Julia Roberts and Jessica Chastain among her A-list clients.

High-powered stylist Elizabeth Stewart

THE SOURCE BELIEVES Elizabeth will help Sandra stand out from the crowd on and off the red carpet.

"She'll be trying out sleek new designs that will celebrate her curves, plus she's likely to experiment with some bold new hairstyles," the close source divulged.

Lately, the actress has been super-pumped by the blockbuster success of her buddy movie, "The Heat," in which she plays an uptight senior FBI agent opposite "Bridesmaids" sensation Melissa McCarthy.

"Sandra is ready to move forward with a new chapter in her life," said the source.

DICK'S MIRACLE RESCUE!

Dick with wife Arlene Silver

It was Van Dyke. Pennington pulled the "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" star from his jaguar car before it exploded in a fireball.

THE COMIC SEEMED TO REGAIN his senses once he was outside the car and Dick told an onlooker: "They thought I passed out so they yanked me out of the car," which Van Dyke said "had just started making a noise...Then it started smoking, then it burnt to a crisp!"

Dick, 87, admitted he felt lucky, saying: "Not only that but a fireman, a nurse and a cop just happened to be passing by!"

The near tragedy occurred on the 101 Freeway near Calabasas, just three months after Dick revealed he'd suffered seven years of head pains caused by dental implants.

California Highway Patrol responded to a report of a burning vehicle at about 2 p.m. on Aug. 19, and the official log noted that the driver was still inside, possibly unaware that the vehicle was on fire. Thankfully, Dick didn't require treatment and was collected from the scene and driven home by his wife of 18 months, Arlene Silver, 41.

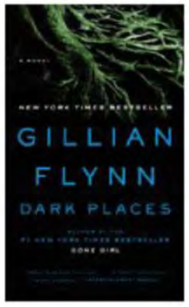
CHARLIZE'S DEADLY FLASHBACKS

Beauty's latest role IS GRISLY REMINDER OF FAMILY HORROR

CHARLIZE THERON's new role is giving her nightmares!

The stunning Academy Award winner is producing and starring in the film version of the best-selling thriller "Dark Places."

In it, she plays Libby Day, a tormented soul who witnessed at age 7 the ruthless slaying of her mother and two sisters, in what appears to be a satanic cult ritual.



The basis of Charlize's film

THE STORY LINE hits very close to home for the South African-born actress, who was 15 when she witnessed the slaying of her abusive, booze-swilling dad – by her own mother.

Charlize's mom grabbed a shotgun and blasted away at the man who had threatened their lives during a drunken rage. The shooting was ruled self-defense and Charlize's mother, Gerda Maritz, faced no charges.

The actress has called her father's death "the great tragedy of my life."

And while the 38-year-old has tried to move on from the traumatic experience, she's still haunted by the incident, says the source.

"Charlize finds the 'Dark Places' project troubling but somewhat cleansing, because it's bringing up a lot of the gruesome memories that she's long blocked out," said a source.

"She's having a hard time with it, but dealing with it. She says she's making this film for every child who's gone through and moved on from a terrible tragedy like the one she had to endure."

PRINCESS DIANA was murdered because she was pregnant with her lover's child and because she was ready to dish the dirt on Prince Charles' sex life!

What's more, in a bombshell new book obtained exclusively by The ENQUIRER, author Alan Power claims the "hit" on Diana was carried out by the British military – and ordered by a member of the royal family!

The extraordinary allegations, found in "The Princess Diana Conspiracy: The Evidence of Murder," seem to coincide with recent reports that Scotland Yard is investigating "new information" about Diana's death.

On Aug. 31, 1997, Diana, her lover – wealthy playboy businessman Dodi Al Fayed – and their driver, Henri Paul, were killed during a high-speed chase in a Paris tunnel. French investigators ruled the crash accidental and determined that Paul had been intoxicated.

BUT NOW SCOTLAND YARD IS looking at the evidence once again after a British Special Air Service soldier's claim that the unit was involved in "arranging" the accident.

"There is no question about it – Princess Diana was murdered!" Power told The ENQUIRER in an exclusive interview.

"British intelligence...arranged for the murder.

"There is also no question at all that Princess Diana was pregnant with Dodi Al Fayed's child, and that she planned to marry Fayed. If her two children with Prince Charles had gone away to live with Diana, the royal family would have no control over them.

"They would not have been brought up in the manner necessary to take over the throne of England.

"Diana was also going to reveal a lot of stuff about Prince Charles' sex life – that he liked men, and had been having sex with his servants, both male and female."

beth's husband, Prince Philip. "The only possible source from which MI6, British intelligence, would take orders are members of the royal family," he explained.

Power fears that the new evidence may be "doctored" as part of an ongoing cover-up.

HE CLAIMS THAT ON THE NIGHT of Diana's death, her assassins rode ahead of her Mercedes in a white Fiat Uno, causing Diana's car to crash by shining a strobe light into driver Paul's eyes. The driver of the Fiat – photographer James Andanson – was found dead nearly three years after the crash, shot twice in the head.

Nicholas Davies, royal expert, author of eight books on the royals and a friend of Princess Diana, told The ENQUIRER that the new evidence being reviewed by Scotland Yard – as well as the claims in Power's book – have set off alarm bells in royal circles.

"But one thing you can be sure of – if Diana and Dodi Al Fayed were murdered, Queen Elizabeth will not condone a cover-up," added Power. "She's 87 years old and she wants the truth to be out there before she dies."

OH, MY GOODNESS!

Sandra needed therapy to cope WITH LEAVING 'GREY'S ANATOMY'

PARTING from "Grey's Anatomy" is such sweet sorrow for star Sandra Oh that she needed therapy!

The 42-year-old actress, who's played surgeon Cristina Yang since the series began in 2005, recently announced she'll leave the hit medical drama after this season.

"I've gone through a lot of therapy over this," she told a reporter through tears. "I started thinking about it because I had to prepare myself. I gave myself two years to emotionally let go."

Indie rocker Andrew Featherston

Sandra Oh has played Cristina Yang since 2005

OH SAID SHE DISCUSSED HER FUTURE with "Grey's Anatomy" creator Shonda Rhimes at the end of season.

"Shonda took me aside and said, 'What are your thoughts?'" Oh recalled. "I said, 'I'm ready (to leave).'"

A source close to the show told The ENQUIRER: "Sandra went back and forth with her therapist, trying to figure out if this was the right move. She decided it was."

By announcing her departure, Oh said she can prepare herself for leaving the show, and the writers can develop a story line around her character's exit.

"For the first time, at least for my character, you have an endpoint, which in series television you never or very rarely have," she added.

Oh, who's divorced from director Alexander Payne and was dating indie rocker Andrew Featherston of the band The Hereafter, is a critically acclaimed actress who co-starred in the Oscar-winning comedy drama, "Sideways."

But for now, she "also wants to focus on her personal life," said the source.

"Sandra is hoping she can spend more time working on her love life," said the source.

'MENTALIST' SWEETHEARTS AXED

Show bosses cut jobs AS STAR BAKER RAKES IN MEGABUCK$

YOU would think they would have seen this coming.

"The Mentalist" stars Owain Yeoman and Amanda Righetti are getting the ax before the end of the upcoming season, The ENQUIRER has learned...just as their characters are heading toward a wedding!

The actors, who play Special Agents Grace Van Pelt and Wayne Rigsby of the fictional California Bureau of Investigation, have been with the series since the show's first season.

Actors Owain Yeoman and Amanda Righetti have a lot more time on their hands now

Simon Baker got a raise

"THEIR CHARACTERS ARE an on-again, off-again couple who were very definitely back on by the end of last season," said an insider. "As the CBI chases down serial killer Red John in Season 6, they decide to get engaged...and leave the Serious Crimes Unit."

The cast of "The Mentalist"

The upcoming departure is due to cutbacks by producers and the CBS network. Chopping Owain, 35, and Amanda, 30, from the lineup will save the production an estimated $300,000 per episode. Meanwhile, the show's main star – 44-year-old Aussie actor Simon Baker, who plays "psychic" Patrick Jane – is pulling in a whopping $350,000 per episode after salary negotiations.

Rather than being down about moving on, however, Owain and Amanda are actually looking forward to the downtime, says the source.

"AMANDA HAD A BABY BOY, Knox, with director hubby Jordan Alan in January," the source noted. "So now she'll have more time to spend with her son."

Owain recently got engaged to girlfriend Gigi Yallouz and just returned from a romantic trip to Bali.

"Now, they can devote themselves to planning their big day," the source added.

HOT NEW SHOWS

ENQUIRER'S SNEAK PEEK at what to watch this season

SAY "goodbye" to summer – and a great big "hello" to an exciting new fall TV season! The ENQUIRER's own TV critic, Len Feldman, is here with an exclusive sneak peek at the funniest, most dramatic and action-packed shows that will soon be hitting your TV screen. From the supernatural creatures of "The Originals" to the superspies of "Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D." and the family-friendly fare of "Back in the Game," there's something for everyone.

BACK IN THE GAME

Premieres Wednesday, Sept. 25, 8:30 p.m. ET, ABC

Former All-Star softball player Terry Gannon Jr. (Maggie Lawson) and son Danny (Griffin Gluck) live with Terry's beer-guzzling dad, Terry Sr. aka "The Cannon" (James Caan). Terry Jr. swore off baseball for life, but when Danny makes a youth baseball team for misfit players, she steps up to coach the kids and teach them a thing or two that the "The Cannon" taught her in this endearing and hard-hitting family series.

DRACULA

Premieres Friday, Oct. 25, 10 p.m. ET, NBC

The King of Vampires returns, with dark and handsome Jonathan Rhys Meyers as the bloodthirsty count in this grand reimagining of Bram Stoker's immortal story. In this twist on the vampire tale, Dracula and vampire hunter Abraham Van Helsing (Thomas Kretschmann) unite to bring down the Order of the Dragon, which destroyed both their lives. Loaded with action, horror and lust, this "Dracula" is a devilish delight.

SEAN SAVES THE WORLD

Premieres Thursday, Oct. 3, 9 p.m. ET, NBC

Emmy winner Sean Hayes ("Will & Grace") and veteran sitcom star Linda Lavin ("Alice") return to series television in this irresistible new comedy. Sean is a single gay father who is trying way too hard to be a loving and attentive dad to his 14-year-old daughter Ellie (Samantha Isler), while dealing with his oppressive new boss (Megan Hilty of "Smash") and totally tactless mom (Lavin). Chock-full of love and laughs, this is the "feel-good" sitcom of the fall.

THE ORIGINALS

Premieres Thursday, Oct. 3, 9 p.m. ET, The CW

The Big Easy is the battleground for a supernatural family feud as vampire-werewolf hybrid Klaus Mikaelson (Joseph Morgan) and his clan return to their native New Orleans to find it in total occult chaos. Seems Klaus' former protege Marcel (Charles Michael Davis) has the human, werewolf, witch and vampire populations under his diabolical control. Now, Klaus must fight to reclaim the city and his birthright in this spinoff of "The Vampire Diaries." Its regular time slot will be Tuesdays at 8 p.m.

FOR FALL TV

TV critic Len Feldman GIVES HIS VERDICT

MOM

Premieres Monday, Sept. 23, 9:30 p.m. ET, CBS

Christy (Anna Faris) is a newly sober mother of two trying to get her life back on track. But her plan is derailed when her recovering alcoholic mom Bonnie (Allison Janney) comes back into her life. Bonnie wants Christy to forgive her for her past mistakes, and the result is one hilariously dysfunctional family comedy with laugh-out-loud moments aplenty.

DADS

Premieres Tuesday, Sept. 17, 8 p.m. ET, FOX

"Family Guy" creator Seth MacFarlane has turned his zany imagination loose in this live action comedy that's as funny as his animated shows! Seth Green and Giovanni Ribisi are two successful gaming entrepreneurs whose lives are traumatically changed when their dads (Martin Mull and Peter Riegert) move in. They may not make you as crazy, but they WILL make you laugh!

ONCE UPON A TIME IN WONDERLAND

Premieres Thursday, Oct. 10, 8 p.m. ET, ABC

Pretty little Alice in an insane asylum? That's where she landed after telling adults about Wonderland. So the White Rabbit (voice of John Lithgow) pulls the Knave of Hearts out of Storybrooke to rescue Alice and take her back down the rabbit hole to find the mysterious Cyrus, the genie she thought was dead. With a super sexy Red Queen (Emma Rigby, above) and wondrous sights aplenty, this is not your parents' "Wonderland"!

HOSTAGES

Premieres Monday, Sept. 23, 10 p.m. ET, CBS

Emmy winner Toni Collette ("United States of Tara") turns in another powerhouse performance in this taut thriller. Dr. Ellen Sanders (Collette) is faced with a moral, personal and political decision that could either kill her family or the president when she, her husband (Tate Donovan) and children are taken hostage by a rogue FBI Agent (Dylan McDermott). The ransom? Ellen must surgically assassinate the president during an upcoming operation. "Hostages" is completely captivating.

MARVEL'S AGENTS OF S.H.I.E.L.D.

Premieres Tuesday, Sept. 24, 8 p.m. ET, ABC

The Marvel Comics covert agency of superspies is served up in this comic book-to-small screen high-octane series. The action never stops as the agents battle bad guys with superhero powers. Agent Phil Coulson (Clark Gregg), who died in the big-screen version of Marvel's "The Avengers," is back from the dead, leading a new team of highly skilled operatives to fight the baddies.

Ask the Vet

WITH DR. JEFF LACROIX

Owning a pet can be a rewarding – but often puzzling – experience. ENQUIRER columnist, top veterinarian Dr. Jeff LaCroix, answers the toughest questions about your animal friends.

HOW CAN WE GET OUR DOG TO STOP PULLING ON THE LEASH?

Q. We're having a tough time trying to get our 2-year-old Lab, Montana, to walk on a leash. No matter how hard we pull, she pulls back harder. A trainer suggested a pinch collar, but we hate the idea of that. We really would like your opinion.

A. Contrary to popular belief, pinch (or prong) collars are not as cruel as they look. The collar is a series of chain links with the open ends turned toward the dog's neck. When the collar is tightened, it pinches the loose skin under the collar. Properly adjusted and used, it startles the dog and gives a sharp correction. A German study showed that it was much neck than choke or slip collars. You could also try a halter-type leader, which works by throwing the dog off balance. But a good fit is important, so take your dog with you to buy one.

SHOULD WE TREAT OUR DOG'S LYMPHOMA WITH CHEMOTHERAPY?

Q. Years ago we lost our first golden retriever to lymphatic cancer, and now it's happening again. Our current pooch, Millie, was just diagnosed with lymphoma. We never pursued treatment with our first dog, but our veterinarian recommends chemotherapy immediately. There is a lot of money involved, but more important to us is how Millie will feel and if it will make a difference in her life span.

A. Chemotherapy is likely to make a difference. Most cases of lymphoma respond dramatically. About 90 percent of treated dogs go into remission. And whereas untreated dogs live just four to eight weeks after diagnosis, the median survival time for treated dogs is about a year – and 25 percent will survive two years. Treatments are done on an outpatient basis and side effects are minimal. While in remission, quality of life is excellent.

$135 MILLION DIVORCE BATTLE

Faith & Tim's MARRIAGE

INSIDERS SAY:

- Jealousy & cheating fears TEARING
- He rages she treats him like a dog
- She's had enough of his wild, wild

COUNTRY music superstars Tim McGraw and Faith Hill are caught up in a $135 million divorce shocker as their 16-year marriage finally hits rock bottom amid furious clashes and suspected infidelities.

Tim feels imprisoned by a demanding, controlling wife who's forced him to give the boot to his longtime buddies and even put his beloved 750-acre Nashville-area ranch up for sale.

Meanwhile, Faith is outraged by the "Southern Girl" singer's reputation for a roving eye and especially fears his tight friendship with seductive young country star rival Taylor Swift – who's half her age.

The couple's life has turned into a battlefield, and now Tim is threatening to walk for good, say sources!

An exclusive ENQUIRER investigation has uncovered the sensational details of the conflict that's left the superstar couple's marriage and their $135 million empire hanging by a thread.

"I'm treated like a dog!" a fed up Tim recently raged about Faith, according to an insider.

And a close source revealed: "He feels he needs to stand up for himself and get his manhood back. He feels like Faith has a leash around his neck – and he wants out of her prison!"

AT THE ROOT OF THE CONFLICT is mutual mistrust – both suspect each other of infidelity.

"For years, Tim has been at the receiving end of cheating rumors, but the truth is that Faith's flirty nature toward other men – including some of Tim's closest friends – has caused a big part of the problems in their marriage," confided an inside source.

A few years back, Faith, 45, was on tour with 46-year-old Tim and became very friendly with another country singer.

"Tim caught the singer massaging Faith's feet," revealed the source.

"He hauled off and punched him and then started lashing out at both of them!

"The only thing that stopped the men from beating each other senseless was that Faith got between them, but it didn't end there.

"Tim was so angry he continued to pick fights with Faith, and she kicked him off his own tour bus and made him ride with his former band."

Around the same time, Faith, who was pursuing a movie career, caught the eye of Kevin Costner – which nearly sent Tim through the roof, insiders say.

"Kevin and Faith really hit it off and began discussing working together on film projects," said the source. "It was all completely innocent, but drove Tim nuts.

"Tim barred Costner films from his tour buses – and even banned the mention of his name."

One persistent whisper has long upset Tim, revealed the source.

"For years it's been rumored in Nashville that (country star) Alan Jackson's wife Denise caught Faith Hill and her husband together on his tour bus, and that is the reason Denise and Alan separated in 1998." But Tim's trust issues are only part of the problem – Faith also goes on jealous tears.

"Taylor Swift is Faith's biggest worry," the close source told The ENQUIRER.

In a recent interview, Tim complimented Taylor saying she is both young and beautiful.

"It's talk like that that sets Faith off. She is completely convinced that Tim and Taylor had an affair while working together in Las Vegas – and even believes he is still secretly in touch with her.

"Tim keeps telling Faith there's nothing to it, but Faith doesn't believe him.

"Taylor is just 23 and gorgeous, and Faith sees her as the biggest threat to her marriage."

A bunch of unsavory stories about Tim's wandering eye have gotten back to Faith over the years, and that's been putting increasing strain on the mar-riage.

One time Tim and some band members were gambling in a private room in Las Vegas when "someone from the casino brought two sexy show-girls into the room," said the source.

"Tim hit it off with one of them and ended up disappearing with her into a bathroom for almost a half-hour. When the stunt got back to Faith, it caused a huge blowup."

Not long after, Tim and some pals went on a Montana outdoor adventure.

"The relationship never evolved into anything more than a friendship, but, once again, when Faith found out he was spending time with this girl, she went ballistic."

Tim has insisted time and time again that there have been no other women in his life, but their marriage remains plagued by jealousy, which is not surprising since they were both engaged

Recently, the tension finally came to a head, say sources, when Faith forced him to put their huge Tennessee ranch on the market because she thinks it's too large for her and their three daughters.

"Tim feels that the ranch is the last thing Faith can take from him," said an insider.

Despite the turmoil, Tim and Faith remain the King and Queen of Country, selling some 80 million albums and amassing a $135 million fortune, noted the close source, saying: "So far it seems to hold them together."

But another insider cautions: "Faith thinks she has Tim under her thumb, but she may be in for a big surprise!"

REVEALED!

How reality star's double WILL SPEND HIS SHARE OF $448M JACKPOT

HAPPY, happy...make that very happy!

That's how popular Powerball winner Will Seeley feels these days, and in an exclusive ENQUIRER interview, he revealed he wants to use his fortune to live like the backwoods reality stars of the hit series "Duck Dynasty."

Will pocketed $3.8 million in the massive Aug. 7 high-stakes, multi-state lottery. With a pot of $448 millions, it was the fourth largest lotto prize ever, and three tickets had the winning numbers.

Married Will shared his prize with 15 county employee co-workers, but he quickly endeared himself to Americans with his downhome style in TV interviews.

He proudly told us he can now afford to quit his day job and live the life of an outdoorsman – just like the stars of his favorite TV show.

"'Duck Dynasty' is about family values, God and country...and, of course, hunting and fishing," he said from his home in Little Egg Harbor Township, N.J. "All these things are important to me.

> "I'm crunching the numbers"

"I'm still in the process of figuring it out...crunching the numbers and doing the financials."

"Duck Dynasty" follows the Robertson clan, a ragtag group of Louisiana rednecks who've become quite rich hawking a top-ranked duck-calling device. The show's Season 4 premiere on Aug. 14 drew a staggering 12 million viewers.

Will was a fan long before he won Powerball and though he denies he did it on purpose, he's copied their long beard look and camouflage duck-hunting duds.

Will and Donna's modest home in Little Egg Harbor Township, N.J.

"I've had this look way before ty," he insists. "This is the way I've always been. So when I saw the show, it was a thrill to see some folks I could relate to."

Will, 43, and his wife, Donna, even got to meet his redneck heroes when they appeared together on the "Today" show.

"IT WAS AMAZING TO SEE the guys I watch on TV and to have my picture taken with them," Will said. "Phil [Robertson] even signed my cap.

"Anytime they want to go Duck hunting with me, I'm there!"

Will says he now plans to buy a log cabin on multiple acres in the woods, although he's not sure where.

"I'm not a big flier. So it will probably be someplace I can get to within driving distance."

Dale Earnhardt Jr.

He also wants to expand his already impressive collection of race car driver Dale Earnhardt Jr. memorabilia.

"I've amassed hundreds of thousands of items that range from hats, shirts, autographed pictures, steins, miniature race cars, posters, you name it," Will says.

But Will's biggest wish is that his dad, a widower who is battling lung cancer, lives long enough to enjoy his son's good fortune.

"I feel truly blessed that I've been given this amazing gift so, if need be, I can help him out with any medical bills," Will says. "We all want him in our lives for a long time to come."

GRANNY GET YOUR GUN!

Jan Cooper wasn’t afraid to brandish her weapon in order to keep herself and husband Bob safe

Pistol-packin’ senior, 72, BLASTS BACK AT HOME INVASION PUNK

WHEN a burglar tried to break into her home, 72-year-old no-nonsense Jan Cooper grabbed her trusty .357 Magnum and fired, missing the creep’s head by inches.

“I’m sorry, ma’am! I’m leaving! Please don’t shoot!” the burglar pleaded as he scurried away.

Now the gun-slinging granny is being hailed as a hero.

“She’s a remarkable woman. That burglar certainly wasn’t going to get into her home,” Gail Krause, a spokeswoman for the Orange County Sheriff’s Department in California, told The ENQUIRER.

The incident unfolded shortly after midnight on June 9, when the barking of their dog Capo, a 4-year-old Rottweiler, woke Cooper and her husband Bob, an 84-year-old World War II intelligence officer confined to a wheelchair.

The burglar had tried to get in the front door of the couple’s home in Anaheim, but it was locked, and Jan spotted him outside an unlocked sliding glass door.

“WHEN HE BEGAN OPENING THE sliding glass door, I knew I had to act,” said Jan, who dialed 911.

“I don’t ever want to shoot anyone, but I was going to make sure he wasn’t coming into my home. I yelled, ‘I have a gun. Back up. I’m firing!’ ”

The sound of the gun firing can be heard on the 911 tape. Cops later figured the bullet whizzed by the burglar’s left cheek, and lodged in the framework around the door.

After firing her Smith & Wesson, Jan exploded in rage.

“Back up, you son of a bitch. Back up!” she shouted. “Get out of here. Get the hell out of here. Get your butt out of here!”

Then she calmly told the dispatcher: “You’d better get the police here. I don’t know whether I hit him or not.”

When deputies arrived, they found the burglar hiding in nearby bushes and arrested him.

Brandon Alexander Perez

“Even though the dog was barking, he was determined to get in,” said Krause.

“It’s a good thing she stopped him, because who knows what might have happened if he’d gotten in. It was a very dangerous situation.”

Afterward, Jan could not stop apologizing – for cursing at the burglar!

“I’m a Christian woman and proud of it,” she said. “I don’t curse. But after I fired at him, rage took hold of me and those words just popped out of my mouth.

“My husband said he’d never heard me talk like that.”

The suspect, 31-year-old Brandon Alexander Perez, is behind bars on a burglary charge and has pleaded not guilty. He has a rap sheet that includes burglary and narcotics violations. He was out on parole and living at a halfway house not far from the Coopers’ home.

Jan said: “Mr. Perez should consider himself a lucky man to have walked away from my house in one piece.”

DOLLY'S ALL HEART

Country legend CRUSADING AGAINST BREAST CANCER

WHAT a doll! Bighearted Dolly Parton, deeply moved by her own cancer scare, has declared war on the deadly disease – beginning in her beloved home state of Tennessee.

Just months after undergoing experimental surgery as a preventive measure, the perky entertainer announced she will give a concert in East Tennessee in the spring to raise money for her campaign.

The "9 to 5" singer will use the proceeds from her Paint the Mountains Pink project to increase awareness of breast cancer and to help fund examinations, checkups and treatment for mountain women.

MONEY RAISED FROM THE CONCERT will be donated to the medical support group, the Dr. Robert F. Thomas Foundation, named for the physician who brought Dolly into the world.

Dolly's legion of fans and admirers expect the event to be a huge success.

"Dolly really is one of the people here and they love her and support the things she says and the things she wants," said her spokesman Ted Miller.

The concert will have special meaning for the country superstar.

The ENQUIRER recently revealed that Dolly, 67, who suffered from gastroesophageal reflux disease, underwent a secret new surgery at the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla., because of fears that the condition could easily lead to cancer.

Working through a series of five small incisions, surgeons installed a tiny ring of magnetic titanium beads around the junction of her stomach and esophagus. The ring of beads allows food to be swallowed but halts the flow of stomach acid back into the esophagus – a condition that can cause cancer if left untreated.

The procedure, expected to last two hours, took five because doctors found they had to remove extensive scar tissue, which was then biopsied for any sign of deadly esophageal cancer. Happily, Dolly got a clean bill of health.

The homespun "Steel Magnolias" star made sure the first to know about her concert were the folks of Sevierville, Tenn. – the town where she was born. In a prerecorded message played at a local fundraiser, she announced that the concert will help "pay for women in Sevier County that do not have insurance and can't afford to have mammograms done."

> "Dolly really is one of the people here"

Dolly, who has not performed in the area for two years, will do more than sing. She's donated a package of one-of-a-kind items to a fundraising auction for her cause. The grand prize: a guided limo tour for six of Nashville's high spots – given by Dolly herself. They'll enjoy accommodations at Dolly's High Rise HideAway, plus a tour of her lake house and her private estate. They'll also visit Nashville sites of historic significance to Dolly and partake in a catered dinner – hosted by Dolly.

OLIVIA WILDE
The "House M.D." star doctors up her kicky Clover Canyon dress with bright green Jimmy Choo accessories. The designers say the print reflects the decayed grandeur of Cuba.

JENNA ELFMAN
At $3,285, this stained glass-inspired Alexander McQueen frock – it's got a rear cape! – might be a bit pricey for her old sitcom character Dharma. But it's smashing on Jenna.

JANE FONDA
The boxy jacket with padded shoulders is giving me an '80s flashback to Linda Evans and "Dynasty." But the muted shades flatter Jane, who plays Nancy Reagan in "Lee Daniels' The Butler."

JENNIFER ANISTON
Jen's adorably flirty Christian Dior frock would be perfect for an afternoon baby shower. But the London premiere of her raunchy new comedy "We're the Millers"? Not so much.

Internet SHRINKS WORK!

Online visits with a trained professional can be as effective – if not more effective – as in-person counseling.

Swiss therapists treated 62 patients, most suffering from depression. One group received online psychotherapy and the other, face-to-face therapy.

Those in the online therapy group fared slightly better right after treatment as well as three months later.

"In both groups, the depression values fell significantly," notes University of Zurich Prof. Andreas Maercker. "Our study is evidence that psychotherapeutic services on the Internet are an effective supplement to therapeutic care."

NEW CREAM'S a smooth operator

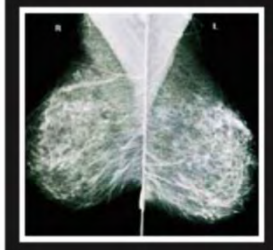
Going out for a big night on the town and want to look great?

A remarkable Instant Forehead Smoother promises to visibly lift, tighten, firm, tone and smooth a sagging neck and "crepe paper" decollete – with fast results.

Created by Bremenn Clinical, it also makes fast work of lines and crows' feet.

The Instant Forehead Smoother is a concentrated formula you can use sparingly just twice a day. It is available at Kohl's: $69 for 1.7 fl. oz.

BREAST SURGERY discovery



Surgery to remove abnormal breast tissue for fear it might turn into cancer might not always be necessary, say experts.

Doctors may be too quick to remove certain lesions – atypical lobular hyperplasia and lobular carcinoma in situ.

"From a pathology perspective, ALH and LCIS are often very tiny lesions, so we wondered why they were getting (surgically removed)," says Dr. Kristen Atkins, from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

The encouraging findings "show that some women can avoid surgery, and that yearly mammograms along with MRI or ultrasound as second-line screening tools may suffice," explained Dr. Michael A. Cohen, now a professor of radiology at Emory University School of Medicine.

Exercise FOR BRAIN HEALTH

Looking to preserve your brain power and ward off Alzheimer's? Try exercise! Drugs have proven largely ineffective in battling the progression of memory loss, but University of Maryland Public School of Health researchers achieved significant results with seniors suffering mild memory impairment – just by putting them on an exercise program that focused on regular treadmill walks.

After a three-month regimen, a small new study concluded that brain function improved along with the ability to remember familiar names. "No study has shown that a drug can do what we showed is possible with exercise," declares Dr. J. Carson Smith, a professor at the university.

Stay stronger, LONGER

New research suggests there's a safer and more effective way to use the male hormone testosterone to stimulate muscle growth and increase strength in older people.

Typically injected, Australian researchers gave a smaller dose of testosterone, taken orally, to healthy postmenopausal women and found that it went straight to the liver without spilling into the bloodstream and affecting other organs.

"The novel aspect of this research is that only the liver gets tickled with testosterone," says Professor Ken Ho of Sydney's Garvan Institute of Medical Research. "This is a great advantage because it avoids the unpleasant behavioral effects of high doses of testosterone injected into the bloodstream."

FAMOUS QUOTES FROM YOUR FAVORITE PEOPLE

Cryptograms are coded messages. To solve the Cryptogram, each coded letter must be replaced by the answer letter in the box overhead. When you solve the code for a letter, write the answer letter in the box everywhere the coded letter appears. Look for common words and letter patterns to break the code. Words like AND, I, THE and A are found frequently. Common word endings are ING, S and E.

Rizzoli & Isles

Tuesday, Sept. 3, 9 p.m. ET, TNT

While moderating a mock trial students are having at a high school, Judge Kathleen Harper (guest star A'da Alison Woolfolk) convulses, collapses and dies. Jane (Angie Harmon) and Maura (Sasha Alexander) investigate. Turns out that the judge was the mother of one of the students. Meanwhile, Jane's brother Tommy (guest star Colin Egglesfield) hires a lawyer (Chris Coppola) to settle his claim against the Storrow center. And Jane is worried that Angela is having financial problems when she shows an increased interest in selling brownies in another sharply written episode of this involving and fun crime drama. Bruce McGill also stars.

Cold Justice

Tuesday, Sept. 3, 10 p.m. ET, TNT

Meet TV's latest female crime-fighting duo – former Texas prosecutor Kelly Siegler and former Las Vegas CSI Yolanda McClary – real-life case-busters who never quit. With the help of local law enforcement, they get long-unsolved small-town murder cases reopened and work them until the killer is finally caught and tried. Tonight's case concerns a Cuero, Texas, housewife's 2001 shooting death, ruled a suicide. The detective in charge always believed her husband killed her. But can he, Kelly and Yolanda prove it and get the man in front of a grand jury? As intriguing and emotionally gripping as any scripted series, "Cold Justice" lights a fire under killers who thought they got away with it.

Royal Pains

Wednesday, Sept. 4, 9 p.m. ET, USA Network

Laura Bell Bundy ("Guiding Light," "Hart of Dixie") guest stars as a thrill-seeking Hamptons reporter covering Election Day who stubbornly refuses to allow her health to stop her from doing her job. Meanwhile, all the political mudslinging throws Evan (Paulo Costanzo) and Paige's (Brooke D'Orsay) relationship into question. Don's (guest star Brad Beyer) condition improves. Now Dr. Hank (Mark Feuerstein) wonders if Molly's (guest star Alexandra Socha) problem behavior may be more than teenage angst. And when Shelby (guest star Laura Benanti) asks questions about Hank's use of pain medication Jeremiah (Ben Shenkman) comes to a disturbing realization in this Hamptons summer getaway of a medical dramedy.

Hold on to your pompoms! The Dallas Cowboys cheerleader competition is on. And this year, DCC director Kelli Finglass, choreographer Judy Trammell, DCC coach Kitty Carter and fitness trainer Jay Johnson put both the rookies and the veterans through some of the toughest training and cheerleading routines yet. From the 500 candidates auditioning, only 47 will make it to and through the semifinals and into training camp to duke it out for the 37 spots on the squad. And that's when the real drama starts. There will be heartbreak and pain – both emotional and physical. So, when these gals finally do hit the field, they really have something to cheer about!

ATTENTION A-listers: If Arsenio Hall has ever said anything to offend you, he wants you to know he's really, REALLY sorry!

The 58-year-old funnyman is scrambling to make peace with old celebrity pals he dissed so they'll appear on his new, nationally syndicated late-night talk show.

Nearly 20 years after he abandoned late night, the all new "Arsenio Hall Show" is getting set for a Sept. 9 debut.

During its original run, from 1989 to 1994, the wisecracking comedian, whose approving audiences gave him those trademark shouts of "Roo, roo, roo," had no trouble booking A-list celebrities.

But today, numerous talk shows compete for stars and Arsenio knows he has to rebuild bridges he burned with celebs such as Madonna, Roseanne Barr, Spike Lee, La Toya Jackson and former BFF Eddie Murphy.

"Arsenio was in no hurry to end those feuds," said an insider. "But now that his new talk show is debuting soon, he's pulling out the stops to fix things."

IN 1990, ARSENIO RUFFLED ROSEANNE'S feathers when he showed TV viewers an unflattering photo of her and new hubby Tom Arnold in bathing suits. Later, during a stand-up routine, angry Roseanne called Arsenio a "black nerd" and a "triangle-headed Eddie Murphy look-alike motherer."

During Madonna's highly rated appearance on "Arsenio," she teased him about his failed relationship with Paula Abdul, made fun of his hair and implied that he and Eddie Murphy were lovers. In return, an infuriated Arsenio insulted her jewelry and implied she was having a lesbian relationship with Sandra Bernhard.

La Toya was furious after Arsenio poked fun at her 1989 spread in "Playboy," and he butted heads with Spike Lee over comments

Arsenio made fun of La Toya, butted heads with Spike Lee, traded insults with Madonna, showed an unflattering photo of Roseanne and annoyed Eddie

KIEFER SUTHERLAND was Jack Bauer to the rescue when he risked the reboot of his hit series "24" for his co-star Mary Lynn Rajskub!

Sources say the Emmy-winning actor demanded that Rajskub return as fan favorite Chloe O'Brian, a ditsy but brilliant systems analyst and Bauer's close confidante – and producers agreed.

"FOX AND IMAGINE Entertainment were perfectly willing to do the new '24' series with Kiefer as the only returning cast member," an industry insider told The ENQUIRER.

"It would have saved them a bundle. The deal was pretty much done until Kiefer put his foot down about Mary. He didn't care what it cost – he wanted Chloe back on the show

He's desperate for big names to appear on his show

Spike made about Arsenio's pal Whoopi Goldberg.

And as we reported in April, "Nutty Professor" star Eddie made it clear he wouldn't appear on the show's debut because he believes Arsenio's been using him to further his career for years.

"Arsenio has been calling his old friends to smooth over any 'misunderstandings,' but he's also having the show's producers call their reps to book them," added the insider.

"He has a lot of crow to eat before his show premieres."

or the show was dead."

The reboot, titled "24: Live Another Day," will air in spring 2014, with Chloe on board and Rajskub, 42, getting a 100 percent raise in episode fees, all arranged by Kiefer, the source revealed.

"MARY'S IN SHOCK OVER Kiefer's loyalty – at least to the Chloe character," said the source. "They were never really close off the set. Kiefer told Mary that he did it as much for himself. He thinks her character, Chloe, is the glue that holds the series together."

Meanwhile, Rajskub – who has a 5-year-old son with actor hubby Matthew Rolph – is anxious to start filming, said the source.

"Mary's thrilled for the work – and the cash!" said the source.

Parking space madness

Wow! For someone to plunk down tens of thousands of dollars for a parking spot raises my ire (Parking Madness, July 29). Try catching the bus, Bub, and earmark some of that cash for something that counts. Feeding the hungry instead of a motor would be a good place to start!

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

Simon Cowell READY FOR BABY!

But wait...is that a look-alike?

FAKE SIMON

Andrew Monk was judged to be an uncanny ringer for the "X Factor" kingpin by none other than Simon himself

SIMON COWELL seems to be smiling away the scandal of getting his onetime friend's wife pregnant as he shops in London for baby items.

But it's not Simon looking for daddy goodies to give the infant he's having with Lauren Silverman, now the ex-wife of real estate mogul Andrew Silverman. (She got just $2 million in the divorce.)

IT'S UNCANNY LOOK-ALIKE

Andrew Monk, 54 – six months older than Simon – who's been fooling people and earning a steady income appearing as Mr. Nasty at parties and the like for 10 years.

The frosty "American Idol" and "X Factor" kingpin isn't even angry that Andrew is currently making money off Cowell's headline-making baby daddy embarrassment. They are good friends.

In fact, Simon himself was the judge of a look-alike contest on British TV several years back and awarded Andrew top doppelganger honors.

Fake Simon, who also runs a DJ company in central England, appears six to eight times a month as Cowell, and he's in huge demand, because Simon regularly makes headlines, with good – and bad – news.

PUPPY LOVE

Dog becomes mom to kitten after saving its life

WITH a heart of gold, an amazing lost dog – injured and trapped in a thicket of bushes and briars – forgot about its own desperate struggle in order to save a tiny kitten.

The black and white Shih Tzu mix, stuck at the bottom of a steep embankment, befriended the kitten and provided it with badly needed food – by nursing it.

The life-or-death drama played out recently during the dog days of summer in Anderson, S.C. Local animal control officer Michelle Smith carefully climbed down the hill to rescue a dog she heard yelping and was amazed by what she saw.

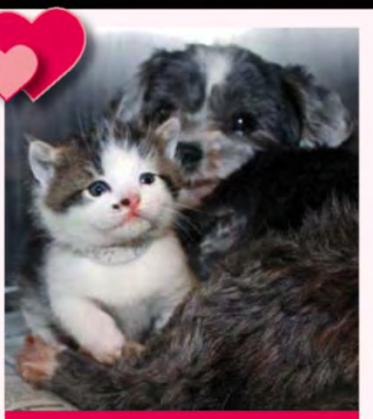
A small kitten, only about five weeks old, was nestled next to the protective dog – suckling milk from her.

"I didn't know what to think," said Michelle. "I was shocked and surprised and then of course, awww."

THE TWO PALS WERE taken to the animal shelter where staffers watched in sheer delight as the pooch, which is at least five years old, took care of the kitten with dogged determination.

The furry buddies, who for now remain nameless, take catnaps together, eat together and even enjoy just looking at each other.

Sometimes the kitten wanders too close to the edge of the crate, but its ever-mindful substitute mom picks her up by the nape of her neck and deposits her in the middle.



The adorable duo are inseparable pals

Jessica Cwynar, director of the shelter, says the dog probably experienced a surge of hormones that triggered the flow of milk. "She's producing some, but not all that the kitten will need nutrition-wise."

As a supplement, the kitten is given small bottles of milk, and her guardian canine enjoys a swig or two herself.

When the kitten finishes her milk, the dutiful "mom" licks her around the mouth to clean her up.

At the end of the day, they seem to realize that the family that sleeps together stays together, and the kitten climbs atop the dog's back to catch some Zzzs and perhaps a few licks.

Cwynar believes that the dog is a well-cared-for pet and that someone may be looking for her.

The director had hoped the pooch's real owner would show up but it wasn't to be. However, the canine and the kitten's story ended on a happy note when they were both adopted by a family from Spartanburg, S.C., and remain together.

Cwynar notes that when a dog and cat are raised together, they can get along, but she has never heard of a cat nursing a puppy.

Her new role-model residents are generating a lot of buzz with their special friendship, and she says: "It would be like one of us seeing a neglected or abandoned child and taking it under our wing."
